Bio

Bradley Wilding is an associate at Keating, Bucklin & McCormack. He enjoys the legal profession because it is a helping one. Prior to joining the firm, he worked for a local Seattle law firm working in trusts and estates litigation, and in aviation-related matters from employment to airline disasters. He also served as a Kitsap County Prosecutor and as a Judicial Extern to the Honorable Justice Dario Borghesan of the Alaska Supreme Court. In law school, he volunteered as a mediator in small claims courts across the state, helping parties reach settlement agreements in various types of civil disputes.

Bradley graduated from the College of William & Mary with a B.A. in psychology and government, summa cum laude. He then graduated from the University of Washington School of Law with pro bono honors. He is admitted to practice in Washington state courts, the United States District Court for the Western District of Washington, and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. In his free time, he enjoys long-distance running, tennis, backpacking and hiking, and spending time with his friends and family.
